Cie CHAOS LÉGER PLUS ON AVANCE...

A transfer area. Travellers at the exit. They are here, but they are looking for a place to go. He is not from here, but is willing to accompany them elsewhere. Together they move on... But do they even know where? Something is wrong in this square world. What is the way out?

A group of travellers trapped in an undefined space. Is it an airport? A station? Have they just arrived or are they in transit? Loaded with luggage, they wander happily from one end of the space to the other, following a well-rehearsed choreography. Compositions, conveyor belts and locks follow one after the other in absurd succession. They obediently follow the signs that are supposed to lead them to a hypothetical exit. But the faulty system always leads them to a dead end. A grumpy character, oblivious to their merry-go-round, watches them exhaust themselves in these sterile circonvolutions, and philosophises candidly about the emptiness of their strange wanderings. When the machine breaks down, he guides them along secondary paths, helping them, with poetry and tenderness, to find an escape hatch.

Free at last, our little company find themselves on an island that looks like a holiday, and are delighted to have finally reached their destination. But surrounded by the sea, our travellers soon realise that they have got nowhere. Stuck, alone and aimless, they end up shipwrecked, lost in the middle of the ocean, and take out their oars to get back on their way, because they have no choice but to move on....
