THEATRE SCHOOL OF PRVA GIMNAZIJA MARIBOR MAUS

Art Spiegelman's graphic novel, Maus, was the inspiration for our performance. The author is the son of a Polish Jew who survived the atrocities of war. Spiegelman wanted to present his father's life to the world and remind people of the violence that existed both before and during the war. Even though he knew this would be a difficult, strenuous task, he persisted and completed it. Time and again, with each revisit, he faced his family history, which had been so heavily influenced by the Nazi genocide. He kept returning to the appalling events recording all of the details recounted by his father.

Spiegelman shed light on his father's past, which, until then, had been wrapped in ignorance.
